Small Evergreens

Those of you who have a bank or a slope that you want to plant to something permanent that will be little or no trouble, why not Creeping Evergreen Junipers? We have three varieties a year old, planted in pots, that would be extra fine for this. In fact we sold a good many this last fall for just that purpose. Since they are in pots and have a good ball of dirt, they would transplant without any losses. We particularly recommend the Andorra. It is a soft green in summer and in fall and winter takes on a coloring of shades of pink, mauve and purple which are very attractive. Or mixing the varieties would be nice.
